Before using our Digital Media please read this Cookies Policy carefully. If you do not agree with it, do not use our Digital Media.

1. What is a cookie?

Cookies are small text files or pieces of information which are stored on your computer or mobile device (such as a smartphone or tablet) when you visit our Digital Media. A cookie usually stores the name of the website/application from which the cookie came, the lifespan of the cookie (i.e. how long it stays on your device) and a unique identifier - usually a randomly generated number.

2. Why do we use cookies?

Cookies make our Digital Media easier to use and help us to tailor our service and products to your needs.

Cookies can do this because our Digital Media can read and write these files, enabling them to recognise you and remember important information that makes your use of our Digital Media more convenient and personalised (for example, by remembering preference settings).

Cookies may also be used to help improve your future activities and experience on our Digital Media. We also use cookies to compile anonymous, aggregated statistics that help us understand how people use our Digital Media, and to improve the structure and content of our Digital Media.

3. What are the different types of cookies we use?

The types of cookies that we use can either be session or persistent, or first party or third party cookies.

Persistent cookies are used to save your login information and remember your settings for future visits to our Digital Media and services. A persistent cookie is a cookie stored as a file on your computer where it remains, even when you close your web browser. This cookie can only be read by the Digital Media that created it, when you visit it again.

Session ID cookies are used to enable certain features on our Digital Media and services, to better understand how you interact with our service and to monitor aggregate usage and web traffic. Unlike persistent cookies, session cookies are deleted from your computer when you close your browser. They usually store an anonymous session identifier on your computer which means you can browse a website/application without having to log in to each page, for example.

First party cookies are our own cookies which we use to improve your experience. They are associated with a user's Personal Data. No third party has access to the information we collect through our own cookies.

Third party cookies are cookies placed by third parties on our Digital Media to provide their services - this includes cookies used for advertising. They place these cookies on your device on our behalf when you visit our Digital Media, and this helps them deliver the services they provide. You can find more information about these cookies in their privacy policies.

Below is a list of the different types of cookies we may use on our Digital Medias. When cookies are used to collect personal information, the provisions explained in our Privacy Policy also apply, in addition to this Cookies Policy.
